Keynote Speaker: Brandon Reynante “Engineering for Humanity”

Billions of people lack the freedom to live safe, healthy, comfortable prosperous lives. Increasing consumption of limited natural resources and a rapidly growing world population pose existential threats to humanity and the environment. Professor Reynante, UC San Diego, presents guidelines for humanitarian engineering through his work with multi-disciplinary teams in the Global TIES program to develop engineering and technology solutions to these challenges. By dreaming big, engineers use their skills to innovate, collaborate, and build sustainable technology-based solutions that benefit humanity.
